EXPLANATORY NOTE

The William J. Miller Trust was established by statute in 1966 for the benefit of students at the Tilbury Area Public School and residents of the Town of Tilbury.

Until recently, the school was located in the Town of Tilbury and was under the jurisdiction of the Kent County Board of Education. As a result of municipal and school board restructuring, the school is now located in the Municipality of Chatham-Kent and is under the jurisdiction of the Lambton-Kent District School Board.

Currently, the trustees of the Miller Trust are to be appointed by the Kent County Board of Education. The Bill provides that the trustees are to be appointed by the Municipality of Chatham-Kent, instead. Only persons who are public school supporters and residents of the former geographic Town of Tilbury are eligible to hold office as trustees.

The Bill also makes changes to the trustees' powers to use the income and capital of the trust.

Currently, a maximum of $300 per year is payable to the principal of the school to defray the expenses of the annual William J. Miller Day activities for grade 7 and 8 students at the school. The remaining income is payable to the treasurer of Tilbury to reduce the amount levied by the town for public school purposes.

Under the Bill, the income of the trust can be used to purchase or lease goods and services and to pay for programs at the school that are not usually paid for by the school board. The income may also be used for scholarships, bursaries and prizes for students and former students of the school. With the consent of the school board, the capital of the trust can be used for capital projects at the school and to purchase equipment for the school.
